

457(b) DEFERRED COMPENSATION PLAN

457(b) Plan Overview

The 457(b) Plan provides you with an opportunity to defer compensation on a pretax basis in addition to any contributions you make to the Caltech Voluntary Retirement Plan. The 457(b) Plan (non-governmental 457(b)) is a plan designed specifically for a select group of management or highly compensated employees who meet the annual required compensation threshold. The Plan offers an additional opportunity to save for retirement.

Eligibility Criteria

Eligibility is based on your annual base salary as of November 1 of each year. If your annual salary rate as of November 1 meets the compensation threshold, you become eligible to participate in the Plan on the following January 1. For 2025, the 457(b) threshold is $303,480.

457(b) Contribution Limit

The 457(b) Plan only permits employee pretax contributions; there are no employer or Roth after-tax contributions to this Plan. In 2025, you can contribute up to $23,500, which is the maximum employee contribution amount.

Investment Options Under the 457(b) Plan

The 457(b) Plan provides the same core investment options as Caltech's Base Retirement Plan and Voluntary Retirement Plan. The Plan offers a broad range of mutual funds and annuities from TIAA, as well as a variety of funds from other companies, allowing you to develop a retirement investment strategy that is right for you. See Caltech's retirement plans' investment options menu at tiaa.org/caltech.

457(b) Deferred Compensation Plan—FAQs

How is eligibility determined and the compensation threshold calculated?

The 457(b) Plan is a plan designed specifically for a select group of management or highly compensated employees. To determine who is newly eligible to participate, each year the compensation threshold is calculated by using the current year's Social Security Wage Base multiplied by 180%. Your November 1 compensation is used to determine your eligibility to participate beginning the following January 1.

What if my salary falls below the compensation threshold for eligibility?

Once you become eligible for the Plan, you will remain eligible as long as your annual base salary does not fall below the IRS Highly Compensated Employee pay threshold ($160,000 for 2025) prior to each January 1. If your annual base salary as of November 1 falls below the current IRS Highly Compensated Employee pay threshold for any reason, you will not be able to make contributions to the Plan effective as of the following January 1.

Why contribute to the 457(b) Plan?

Because contributions are made on a pretax basis, making contributions to the Plan will lower your taxable income. What's more, your account grows on a tax-deferred basis. So, you won't have to pay taxes on your contributions or on investment earnings until you withdraw money from your account. And you can contribute to your 457(b) in addition to Caltech's other retirement plans, increasing the amount you can save for retirement.

Can I borrow from my contributions in the 457(b) Plan?

No, loans are not allowed.

Can I withdraw my contributions if I experience a financial hardship?

You may take a single lump-sum withdrawal of benefits in the amount reasonably necessary to satisfy an unforeseen emergency need. Speak to a TIAA financial consultant to understand the implications of a withdrawal. Schedule an appointment at tiaa.org/schedulenow or call 800-732-8353.

If I can't afford to contribute the maximum allowed to both the Voluntary Retirement Plan and the 457(b) Plan, which should I contribute to first?

Generally, it is to your advantage to maximize your contributions in the Voluntary Retirement Plan first, as assets of the Voluntary Plan are not subject to the claims of the Institute's creditors.

When can I take a distribution from my account?

You may take a distribution after your employment from the Institute ends. You must make an election indicating timing and form of payment within 121 days from severance of employment. If no election is made, a lump-sum distribution of your entire account will automatically occur following 121 days from the date your employment with the Institute ends. In-service distribution options for employees at least age 70½ can be requested by contacting TIAA.

Can I defer payment from the 457(b) Plan?

Yes, as long as you make an election within 121 days after employment ends. However, the distribution must commence no later than:

- April 1 following reaching age 73, or
- If your employment ends and you are at least age 73, you must commence by April 1 of the following calendar year.
