The value of professional management
with TIAA managed accounts
Trusting professional managers with your money is a big step

In an age of constant change and volatile markets, knowing what to do with your investments requires even more time and expertise.

Professionals engaged on your behalf can make a difference

Whether you are considering professional investment management for the first time or are familiar with it, TIAA managed accounts offer a personalized approach that’s designed to help you feel confident your portfolio is aligned to your goals and investment style. That’s why people are turning to TIAA’s Portfolio Advisor and Private Asset Management to help create a unique road map to pursue financial well-being.

Helping you pursue a lifetime of financial well-being

The power of customization

Creating portfolios designed around what matters most to you

A purposeful strategy

Helping to keep you on track toward your goals through a disciplined investment approach
TIAA advisors lead your team

TIAA advisors work with you to create an overall financial plan backed by a devoted team of professionals that may include a portfolio manager, trust professional or wealth planning specialist, depending on your needs.

Your TIAA team will help you with key goals that are often missing when it comes to investing:

- Building a plan mindful of taxes and risks
- Generating income to help maintain your lifestyle
- Creating backup plans in case you are unable to make decisions
- Transferring wealth according to your wishes

Personalized wealth solutions for a lifetime of confidence

Your goals are unique to you. How you reach them should be too. With TIAA, choice matters. We take your preferences into account to create a portfolio that reflects your goals and values.

You are at the center of everything we do

A portfolio as unique as you
We start by taking the time to get to know you on a personal level so that we can understand your needs and aspirations. Then we develop a personalized plan reflecting your goals, life situation, investment preferences and risk tolerance.

Ongoing investment management keeps your investments on track
Your portfolio will be strategically rebalanced to keep you on target—with daily monitoring to avoid unnecessary risks, costs and tax consequences.

Financial strategies built on personal relationships
Our services evolve along with you. As you build wealth and your finances become more complex, TIAA along with dedicated resources, such as a Portfolio Manager, will responsibly manage all of your complexities to help keep you confident in your financial plan.
A purposeful strategy guides investment selection

A well-thought-out, long-term strategy is essential to help you stay the course through the ups and downs of investing. We follow a disciplined approach based on sophisticated, centralized analysis, research and experience to help keep your portfolio on track toward your goals and keep risk in check.

Manage risk while pursuing long-term goals

Your asset allocation is designed to help you pursue your long-term goals, while being mindful of the risks you are willing to take. As we discover the challenges you may be facing, our team of professionals will carefully construct or rebalance your portfolio to bring it in line with your investment plan. We look at all the factors that affect your strategy to come up with an allocation that can help you:

- Pursue your goals at a risk level that suits your situation
- Improve the likelihood of achieving what you want
- Maintain an appropriate level of diversification
- Manage market uncertainty
- Reduce the impact of emotional responses
Deep level of diversification\(^1\) goes beyond the traditional approach

To many investors, diversification means dividing money between asset classes such as stocks, bonds and cash equivalents. While that’s a great way to start, true diversification breaks down those categories even further to provide variety within them. This helps to better manage risk and improve long-term growth potential.

Annual allocation adjustments keep portfolios on pace with market trends

Time and events can change the expected risk and return for various asset and subasset classes. Since these changing assumptions can affect asset allocation strategies, TIAA re-examines these strategies every year—twice a year for managed income strategies—to adjust for these changes. Assets in a portfolio are therefore adjusted or at times, replaced to help keep your strategy in line with market trends.

Fund selection to match your individual goals

Rigorous screening helps keep investment quality high

Your portfolio holdings are carefully selected from a wide range of investments that pass our rigorous screening and review process.

1. Start with thousands of equity and fixed-income investments
2. Screen investments and managers through proprietary research
3. Create a core list of investments ranking high in quality
4. Continuously review the selection process and methodologies

Funds are monitored to ensure they remain true to the investing strategy

If necessary, TIAA will add or replace a fund to keep a portfolio’s investment strategy on track. For example, the fund manager of a tax-exempt bond fund supporting tax-sensitive investment strategies is retiring. Concerns are raised about the experience of the person replacing the manager. This prompts an open search for a new fund with a portfolio manager that meets TIAA’s investment criteria.

For investors with even more complex financial situations, individual bonds and securities may be an appropriate consideration.
Consistent oversight to maintain the integrity of our approach

Our investment management approach is subject to rigorous monitoring and evaluation. Our disciplined research process further ensures your securities and the people managing them continue to meet our investment criteria.

DAILY
Monitor any financial statements or other formal documents submitted to regulatory agencies as well as company press releases on fund managers.

WEEKLY
Conduct performance reviews to help identify managers that could be under—or overperforming.

MONTHLY
Review each manager’s performance against our expectations in the current market (such as the ability to perform in a rising or a falling market) and in his or her asset class.

QUARTERLY
Conduct senior management meetings to review managers who are “on watch” or could be a concern. Conduct performance attribution analysis and quarterly investment commentaries.

SEMI-ANNUALLY
Conduct quantitative scoring to identify new investment options.

ANNUALLY
Conduct formal due diligence on each portfolio manager through in-person visits or conference calls.
The value of smart rebalancing

Rebalancing a portfolio is crucial to maintaining your asset allocation strategy. If returns are higher or lower in one asset category than another, your portfolio could be exposed to more or less risk than you want.

TIAA’s customized rebalancing model evaluates your portfolio every day, managing portfolio risks while keeping your portfolio on track and taking tax liabilities into account, when applicable.

Here’s what this means to you:

- Daily monitoring
  Daily review of each security selected for your portfolio to help keep assets from drifting too far out of balance.

- Cash flow management
  Inflows (dividends, interest, recognized capital gains) and outflows (withdrawals) are channeled through cash first. This helps to improve the efficient use of cash for purchases and sales of assets.

- Customized to your portfolio
  Rebalancing happens when it’s determined to be needed, not on a fixed schedule such as quarterly or annually.

- Risk management
  Your level of risk is established together with your advisor and remains consistent with your expectations.

- Tax-sensitivity
  Fewer transactions and a proprietary trading program help minimize taxable events.

- Backed by research
  A research-based approach can result in a more effective rebalancing strategy.
